

Run 2200, Monday 24th August, 2009

Location: General Disaster's Headquarters, Bangalla Road, Warrawee

Hare: General Disaster      Master Chef: Pilko

“ Who said Pilko's cooking is a General Disaster?”

Pilko just can't stay away from his pots and pans and his cooking provided an excellent inter-course to the celebration of the Posh's landmark “Two Two Oh Oh” run.

General Disasters military up-bringing was evident on the runners trail which basically went “Left – Raht – Left – Raht – Left – Raht” at every intersection, although there must have been more “Lefts” than “Rahts” as the trail did eventually end up back at Home.

There was no shortage of checks and they mostly seemed to work. I use the “Yakitty Check Effectiveness Factor”. Simply put, this is the number of times Yakitty passes the TM on the trail. The higher the number, the more effective the checks have been. Last night's run rated a credible “4” (the record is 7, at the Cooks River run).

General de Gaulle volunteered to take a map to guide the walkers around their “check-free” trail. Those wimps who were afraid of a few spots of rain such as Pee Dub, Baron von Drut, Druid & Larry Adler joined the walkers in the hope of an early finish...but not to be. The walkers trail was unnecessarily long, with Payling being first home in over the hour.

Other walkers, Centrepoint, Darwin & Polly seemed to dissolve with the light rain and disappeared before de Gaulle's eyes as the light rain that made arrow finding difficult.

Flying Scotsman & Lurch made a welcome return to Hashing and the Flying Haggis Man seemed intent on explaining to the TM that he had taken a long holiday just to avoid being asked to join next year's committee.

The checks proved effective and it was not uncommon to see Witches Tit, Super Glue or Chastity endeavouring to catch up with the pack, having dutifully checked out the trail. Lightning, really dragging the chain down Selwyn Street, admitted to having gone down the check-back at Wombrah Street twice! Why? He “...just wanted to make sure...” This put him well back until the check at Merrivale gave him the opportunity to catch up with ever vocal trio of Goonshow, Le Merde Petit & Tic Toc. The majority of the Hounds saw the whole trail which in the main was well marked and uneventful.

Footnote:

The judges confirmed that this was officially a ‘dry’ run although the sprinkling of rain made finding the arrows difficult. This was the first Winter run of this year without any bush or even a bit of parkland, but it worked well with most of the Hounds being effectively lured around the full trail and with checks doing their job well.

The bucket was up-to-scratch as the boys gathered under the huge tarp that had been deployed to keep Pilko's cooking smells from permeating the atmosphere and potentially resulting in a mass evacuation of the neighbourhood.

At the On ON

If camping on the footpath outside a big house in Warrawee on a cold, wet, windy, winters night and being served hot soup and curry prepared from a 'soup kitchen' on the pavement is your thing then last night was your night...Having been forbidden entry to the General's Headquarters by the bossy Field Marshal, who obviously outranks the General, a few unfortunates, who desperately needed to answer the call of nature, found the local streetscape quite absorbing. It is understood that most fruit trees subjected to such treatment rapidly begin to taste like lemons.

Fortunately, our very own, never say die chef, aka Pilko the Peerless, proved yet again his ability to satiate and even satisfy the demanding, ever critical hordes.

Those few hashmen who misread the newsletter and went to Bantry Bay for an early start to next weeks run, missed out on a sumptuous 3 courser. But, who was the cretin who wanted to know how much meat there was in the Trifle?

Bargain Run 2200 T Shirt Offer

A few surplus Run 2200 T-shirts (See Photos for sample) are available in various sizes for the below cost price of $10 each. If you missed the run or want a spare bring your money next Monday night.

Down Downs:

One up for your hardworking committee

"give 'em curry" roars the General to his Atrocity Adjutant

Now don't you worry about that!!

With apologies to Joh and all other aspirants.

There is no way! We couldn't cope with all the self-congratulatory emails!

Where is LCL?

Ya gotta love that shirt.

Eagerly waiting to try on their new shirts
