A Lesson In Crossing A Creek At Maquarie University?

The Run:

The hares Khyber and Illucifer spent weeks, not just days or hours planning the joint run of the year and one thunderstorm is all it took...

Your humble scribe was caught out by the Tuesday Joint run at Macquarie Uni and relied, with grateful thanks to Simmo, on a lift to the start. As we approached a deluge flooded Chatswood and the traffic ground to a halt. Ah well I was going to be late. Due to my late arrival my impressions this week will be given from the back of the pack (I hear some snorting "Aren't you always there"), with assistance from others including your faithful TM, Music Man. It was not raining as Knockers galloped by with a "the packs already gone" and your hard working President unloaded palettes of wine for your enjoyment. Khyber shrugged "What shortcut, the trail has been washed away, there are no arrows". As the Best Dick and I headed across the playing fields Mrs Ripper (Kate to some) called out "I'm to be the first home tonight".

On down the stairs (steep stairs) as three spritely young Harriettes (was that you Lizard?) warned "I hope you have dry shoes". My shoes were still dry so it all seemed good as the track twisted and turned along the riverbank. Ahh Bumcrack "Is that you taking off in fear of the water?" and ferryman Colonel KFC standing waist deep in water. I plunged in asking whether the rope would take my weight, Colonel Saunders replied "Are you chicken, it will take at least 60kg to break the rope", that was exactly my concern.

On up to the hill to the GNW with the sounds of the bugle calling, Irish must be on trail. A most enjoyable amble through forest and mud puddle before the runners walkers split (rumoured to have been hard to spot at 80 km/h by Benny). Frenchie, showing the way (as a JM must) lead the pack down a wet forest path to a aqueduct style crossing. The north Shore Wanderers led a brigade of red up the bike path, as the scribe started to catch the pack. Three shadowy figures headed back down the runners trail they had missed earlier – athloids?

Into the bush once more there was Tyre Fruk, and Billy chivalrously going down with Minnie Mouse. An excellent trail, causing Scud to wear his trousers thin and Kitty and Super to dance around the passing parade. We headed up the hill not far to the soccer fields now. Past Klangers and Goody 2 Shoes (or is that Miss Baddie). Reaching the playing fields I heard the sprint of Cinders and the Plunger catching me fast. They had abandoned their quest for the runners trail, in spite of the brilliant floodlights.

At the bucket old friendships were re-kindled and praise for the run was given. Lightning was heard to comment "100% of the new committees summer runs have been outstanding in spite of the rain", well done the Hares. The run will be remembered not only for the great culinary banquet, a very memorable meal (see below), but for the great bush, certainly a taste of more to come from the hares and this illustrious committee.

On On

An excellent feast of BBQed lamb, or chicken if you preferred, with generous salads and fresh bread rolls was provided. The superior wine flowed, the beer was chilled and the company first class.

Music Man lived up to his reputation as he got the throng on their feet to sing in Calici "He will rock you", while Tic Toc chewed his second mouthful.

The Hares Khyber and Illucifer drank their beer and after mentioning some whimps who took their shoes off no names were shamed (did Casino Champion Last Card Louis lead this disgraceful event) the pack got to call dissidents. Knockers and Klangers will be warming up Mr Knockers' (aka Darwin Don) parts prior to his 10,000m run at the masters games in the "incredibly amazing old farts" section. And so the party ambled into the night. On On
